The Trust's School Direct programme, delivered in partnership with The University of Chichester, aims to develop professional, reflective and effective teachers by encouraging such qualities as creativity, commitment, enthusiasm and intellectual liveliness.

The programme leads to the award of a Postgraduate Certificate in Education (Masters level) with QTS. During the School Direct year, trainees spend the majority of their time in one of the Trust's academies where they are part of the school community and are introduced to the practice of teaching in a structured way, with appropriate support from an experienced mentor and other colleagues who support their professional development.

In addition, trainees spend at least 6 weeks in another school; this is usually in the second half of the spring term.

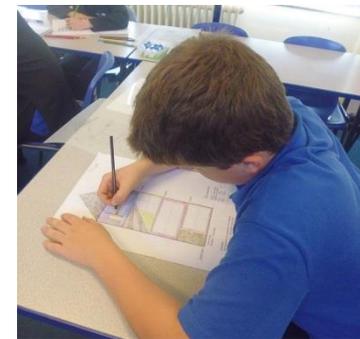

Trainees also have the opportunity to spend time in other academies across the Trust each of which offers a distinct learning environment.

Trainees receive a regular training programme delivered within the Trust and also attend training at The University of Chichester drawing upon the combined expertise within the Trust's academies and the University's Institute of Education.

The Trust's secondary academy is Mill Chase Academy in Bordon
